A Q: My Laravel website cannot find routes, even with namespaces I'm in over my head and cannot figure this out. On a fresh install of Laravel I cannot get any routes to work. Approach: I have installed a fresh installation of Laravel. I have installed Homestead, and I have created a homestead directory inside of the homestead folder. In that folder I have moved an existing Laravel project (using the Laravel Spark Installer). This was working fine until I decided to change Homestead's database to Postgres. So now when I go to localhost:8000/admin I get the following error: Unable to find the right way to convert this Laravel application to use Laravel Spark. The application runs, but it is broken. Please make sure to properly set up the routes before doing this! What I've tried: Here is an image of my routes.php file: And here is my .env file: What should I do to fix this? And why am I getting this error even though I have called the root namespace correctly? Edit: The config/routes.php file looks like this: `get('/', function() { return "Hello World!"; });` Edit 2: Here is my .htaccess file: Options -MultiViews
